In this context, we are committed to give our students to develop themselves as the world-class sportspersons in making.

In India, some parents are still disoriented and indifferent about encouraging their daughters for higher education. Girls' education is rarely supported till research degrees. In this context, sports can provide students an opportunity to realize their dreams. A meritorious student in sports does not need higher degrees to become financially independent.

A recent study using state-level data concluded that an increase in female sports participation leads to an increase in women's labor force participation down the road and greater female participation in previously male-dominated occupations, particularly high-skill, high-wage ones. In addition, more than four out of five executive businesswomen played sports growing up, and the vast majority reported that the lessons they learned on the playing field contributed to their success in business. Female and minority athletes are more likely to aspire to hold leadership positions later in life than their peers who are not athletes. Young women who play sports have a higher level of self-esteem, a lower Incidences of depression and a more positive body image.
